

First and Second Sentences

Study 2, N = 948. Before the second sentence, participants learned that the offender was paralyzed and no longer a threat, and that the case would never be made public. Small points are participants; large points are means with 95% confidence intervals. The second sentence always followed the first.